2010 “Cherry Cove” Pinot Noir

Why Cherry Cove? In 2009, we felt the times were right to introduce a Pinot that was easygoing and didn't break the consumer's bank. The Cherry Cove label is imagined from a photo of our favorite boating cove, is a play on the Rainier cherries planted with our estate vineyard in 1991, and also expresses the cherry subtleties of flavor found in our Pinot Noir wines.

We wanted a Pinot Noir that our restaurant customers could proudly feature as a discovered boutique wine, and that also supported their bottom line. The Cherry Cove brand will grow with grapes sourced from our estate vineyard and the surrounding Willamette Valley. The Cherry Cove is a fine Oregon Pinot Noir which provides friendly drinking and approachability, but also rises to the intelligence of the wine consumer who wants to experience the originality and personality unique to each Oregon vintage.

2010 vintage: The cool 2010 growing season gave way to wonderful hot September weather which focused tannins, increased sugars, and preserved the bright acids characteristic of the vintage. After a 5 day cold maceration, natural and selected yeast fermentation, malolactic fermentation in barrel, the wines were hand-stirred & sur lie aged to meld the rich acid of the vintage with a round mid-palate texture and fine tannins representative of the vintage.

The ruby color of this wine suggests “classic Pinot” as the nose opens with fresh lavender and plum jam. Across the palate are vibrant tones, from explosive red cherry on entry to the lush strawberry on the lively mid-palate. Lingering floral tones hang for just a moment and carry through the soft finish.
